

Howard County Executive Visits Tin Lizzie Wineworks

Ken Ulman, the County Executive of Howard County, visited Tin Lizzie Wineworks recently to learn more about our winemaking operation. Dave Zuchero, head winemaker and Rob Pearre, assistant winemaker, gave Mr. Ulman a tour of the Wineworks and explained the “make-your-own” wine facility concept. Mr. Ulman received some practical winemaking experience as he tried his hand at “punching down” some vats of fermenting wine. “This is a lot of fun,” said Mr. Ulman. “I’d like to get a group together to do this,” he added.

Howard County Executive Ken Ulman “punches down” a vat of fermenting grapes as head winemaker Dave Zuchero looks on.

The group spent some time discussing the possibility of wineries, vineyards and winemaking in Howard County. Tin Lizzie Wineworks is looking forward to working with County officials to facilitate winemaking in Howard County and to eventually make the county a wine destination. At the end of the meeting, the group raised a glass to the future of winemaking in Howard County.

Rob Pearre, Dave Zuchero and Mr. Ulman discuss wine-making, wineries and grape growing.

Ginny Gick, Community Liaison, Rob Pearre, Dave Zuchero and Mr. Ulman toast the future of wineries in Howard County.

Before he left, Mr. Ulman left his mark on our signature barrel. Look for it the next time you’re at the Wineworks!